THE SPLIT IN NEW YORK NOW PAST REMEDY.

NEITHER OF THE LEADING CANDIDATES COULD CARRY THE STATE.

AN ULTIMATUM SENT TO THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE—ARKANSAS REPUBLICANS INDULGE IN A FOREIGN HOPE—NORTH CAROLINA HAS ENOUGH OF TAMMANY—POLITICAL NEWS.

NEW YORK, March 5.—Every member of the National Democratic Committee will receive in the next few days a letter approved by the Provisional Committee of the anti-Hill party in this State. This letter declares in effect that the anti-Hill Democrats are not wedded to Cleveland and will accept any good Democrat who can carry New York. They will contest the Hill delegation chosen at the mid-winter Albany convention, because it does not represent New York Democracy. The most important declaration in the letter is that Cleveland is himself to be blamed for the "mess" in which the party has got itself.

The letter was written originally to Dr. W. A. Anderson, a prominent Cleveland Democrat from Wisconsin, and was approved by Mr. Whitney, ex-Mayor Grace, E. Ellery Anderson, ex-Secretary Fairchild and others, and copies were ordered to be sent to every member of the Democratic National Committee. It declares that thousands of Democrats are opposed to Hill, regardless of Cleveland. The letter continues:

"If the contesting delegation is thrown out at Chicago and Hill is elected, Cleveland and nearly all the leaders will probably support the ticket, but there are many men who are little inclined to submit any further to the impositions practiced for the past few years. These men rightly regard the Hill convention a proceeding which would be set aside in a court of law for fraud and duress. In some counties these men have held off from the contesting movement for the avowed reason that they want to see Hill nominated so as to finish him forever. The majority against us in this State would be anywhere from 50,000 to 100,000 votes."

It is Cleveland or any leading man of the party is nominated and an opponent of the State Committee forced, opposition within the party would be a mere bagatelle. Nobody really cares for Hill, and his whole strength comes from the fact that he is supposed to be "in it." Tammany is held together by a mere handful of leaders, and even with them, except in the case of Bourke Cochrane, it is doubtful whether there is an atom of personal feeling for Hill.

A contest will not injure Cleveland if the trouble is taken in other parts of the country to investigate the real situation in New York. Whether it does injure him or not cannot affect the movement. Probably he is responsible for letting them (the Hill managers) say what they please about the party. Of course it would be safer to nominate the man who stands the best chance of carrying the State than the man who stands the best chance of losing it. Cleveland or somebody else. Cleveland would probably get the most votes here, as his great outside strength would be a mere bagatelle. Nobody really cares for Hill, and his whole strength comes from the fact that he is supposed to be "in it." Tammany is held together by a mere handful of leaders, and even with them, except in the case of Bourke Cochrane, it is doubtful whether there is an atom of personal feeling for Hill.

"In fact, we have voted yet, and we claim the same right to contest at a national convention that our opponents are irregular. We are rapidly gathering in the anti-Hill leaders, and if our movement develops as it has promised lately there will be no difficulty in proving in Chicago that we represent the Democratic party of the State."

NO NEW YORKER WANTED.

NEITHER CLEVELAND OR HILL FAVORED IN NORTH CAROLINA.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 5.—President Butler of the State Alliance was interviewed to-day by the Sunday Post-Dispatch correspondent, and said:

"I tell you this—Hill movement is worked in the towns. It is not the country. Take my own county, for instance. If there were only the two men, Cleveland and Hill, and from Cleveland would get a majority of the Democratic votes, I would not vote for him. I would vote for myself, yet you must not imagine that I am a Cleveland man. Neither do I vote for Cleveland. I vote for the country or State. Our people will not support Cleveland, and if our movement develops against New York men. This is not a theory, but a condition. They are tired of the Cleveland movement, and if such a course is continued there will certainly be a revolution in the State. Mr. Butler spoke with great earnestness, and said the time had at last come to speak plainly."

HOLIDAY WEAKENED.

ANTI-HILL SENTIMENT TOO STRONG FOR A KANSAS EDITOR.

ATCHISON, Kan., March 5.—Last night at Leavenworth, after the meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee, C. H. Holliday, Jr., proprietor of the Topeka Democrat, a leading organ of the anti-Hill movement, made the proposition that if the Cleveland land people would permit him to go to the Chicago Convention as a delegate he would cheerfully accept instructions from Grover Cleveland and would pledge his vote of honor to be faithful to them. This offer, in view of the state of the Cleveland movement, amounts to a confession of the weakness of the Cleveland movement and the hopelessness of the Cleveland movement. Mr. Butler spoke with great earnestness, and said the time had at last come to speak plainly.

TEXAS WILL MAKE HIM SENATOR WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

PARIS, Tex., March 5.—The primary election in this county on instructions for United States Senator has resulted in a victory for Mills. This is a surprise to everyone. Paris is regarded as the capital of Culberson's district, and by his efforts in Congress a Federal Court was located here. Mills represented this district in the lower House eighteen years and is personally known to all the leading citizens of the county. He is a man who is able to carry a large majority, and it is not surprising that he has won this victory. POOR HARRY WOODSON.

THE WELL-KNOWN MINISTRAL BEFORE A LUNACY COURT.

NEW YORK, March 5.—Harry Woodson, as he is known to the minstrel and theatrical professions, but whose real name is John Charles Woodson, was before Judge Clement of the city court, Brooklyn, yesterday, on a petition, signed by his wife asking that he be committed to the Long Island Home for the Insane at Amityville, Dr. Metcalf and O'Connell, examiners in lunacy for the Charities Department, have examined him and certify that he is insane. His insanity is of a chronic nature, and he is perfectly cured, and he appeared more like a person who has been dazed by some great shock or nervous system. He is one who is about recovering from a long-continued and excessive debauch. His sister-in-law, a Mrs. Woodson, who was not a drinking man and it is claimed that his condition was brought about by a long series of cruel practical jokes which have been played on him by members of the theatrical profession, to which he has been a member since he was a boy. His insanity is said to be due to an injury which he received when he was only 4 years of age. A brick thrown by a lad, which struck him in the forehead, caused the injury. He was born in Corinth, and first appeared on the minstrel stage in Memphis, Tenn., in 1870. He has since made a career of more or less success. He has a wife and three children. At one time, he was a member of "We, Us & Co." combination.

A MURDEROUS MEDICANT.

Rabbi Mendes of New York Shot by an Arab.

NEW YORK, March 5

George Phillips at Larze.
George Phillips, a young man from Kentucky, escaped from the Baptist Sanitarium on Bell and Taylor avenue, at an early hour yesterday morning. He is 25 years old, is tall, built and wears a black slouch hat. Phillips came here for treatment at the sanitarium a few days ago. He is now 60 years old, and of the train. He tried to escape as soon as he reached the Union Depot, but Officer Condon, who was on duty, saw him and escorted him to the Four Courts. Phillips claimed that he was perfectly sane and that he had no desire to do any harm, and reach St. Louis. His friends at home collected money to send him, and to defray the cost of his trip. He was taken to the sanitarium. Phillips was taken out there Friday evening. Condon was away, as stated above, yesterday morning.

WILL LYNCH HIM.

Sedalia Ready to Punish the Assailant of Mrs. Taylor.

PLAIN EXPRESSIONS IN VIEW OF HIS EXPECTED SPEEDY CAPTURE.

The Outraged Wife's Touching Defense of Her Husband Unveils a Thrilling Story—Mr. Taylor Talks of the Robbery and Assault—The Desperate Negro's Tactics Described.

SEDALIA, Mo., March 5.—The officers of the law are hot on the trail of the robber ravisher of Mrs. Charles S. Taylor, and Sedalia is now girding up its loins for a lynching.

That the spirit of Judge Lynch is in the atmosphere too strong to be resisted is a matter beyond doubt. It is confidently expected by the Taylor and the Doyle families—Mrs.
Taylor was a Miss Kate Doyle—that justice will be promptly meted out to the brute who outraged young Mrs. Taylor in the presence of her husband on the night of Tuesday, Feb. 23, as soon as he is brought within the corporate limits of this city.

It is acknowledged by the local authorities who will have charge of the criminal, should he be captured, that it is extremely doubtful if Mrs. Taylor's assailant will ever be allowed to reach the jail alive after leaving the train at the Sedalia depot.

The advisability of lynching is openly talked of on the streets of Sedalia, and the result of such discussion is the invariable verdict that lynching will follow the capture of Mrs. Taylor's assailant just as surely as night follows day.

It is said that there are but two things that can prevent a lynching here if the man guilty of the Taylor outrage is captured. The first is the killing of the man by the police in effecting the capture, which is thought to be extremely probable; the second is the murder of the ravisher of his wife by Chas. G. Taylor himself in the sudden frenzy of recognition of that brute. Some of Mrs. Taylor's frontier friends state openly that they would not be surprised if this latter happening should do away with all necessity either for jail law or a legal trial.

SOME SIGNIFICANT EXPRESSIONS.
As a matter of course no organization is being talked of for the lynching, but the event of the now hourly expected capture of Mr. Taylor, father of the young husband whom was outraged, and the result of it is a concern that never will be any organization.

"It won't be found necessary," said the editor of the Post-Dispatch correspondent today. As soon as it is learned that the man who assaulted Katie at the depot here in Sedalia, the rest will follow without any necessity for organizing. I believe it would be impossible to carry out the lynching here in Sedalia, and the Sedalia without a lynching party tearing him from the protection of the officers."

Mr. Chas. G. Taylor, the man who was the husband and father of the victim of the

"I am not sure," said the Post-Dispatch assaulted Katie at the depot here in Sedalia, the rest will follow without any necessity for organizing. I believe it would be impossible to carry out the lynching here in Sedalia, and the Sedalia without a lynching party tearing him from the protection of the officers."

your clothes, blood on the ground, our bodies are found, and all this would lead to your arrest and punishment.

"At this the negro moved away a few steps and seemed to be deep in thought. Then he came back again and said:

"Again I begged him not to kill me. 'I don't see why I should want to live now,' I said. 'But life does seem so sweet! And look how easily you can escape. If you are afraid I promise you that we will do anything in the world you ask us to do. We will stand right here in this lonely spot until daylight if you say we shall. We will do anything you say.'"

"The negro again hesitated, still feeling with the cylinder of his revolver.

"Well, I'll let you go,"

"And it was only then that he cut the cord which bound Charles's hands and feet and let him loose, and let us go away from that awful place. If my husband had made the slightest move towards him the negro would have shot Charles dead in his tracks. He stood there with his pistol and knife both drawn, watching us until we got out of sight. We were afraid every minute that he would shoot us as we went from him, or that he would follow and kill us. It was only my pleading with him that kept him from murdering us, and I hurried my husband away, because I knew it would be his fate to die if he showed the faintest sign of an attack on the negro. The man was desperate and murderous and the least thing would have changed his mind, and my husband's life and mine would have been his prey. If Charles had attacked him then both our lives would have been paid the price of his freedom."

MRS. TAYLOR'S STORY OF THE ROBBERY.
At another point in her conversation young Mrs. Taylor said to the Post-Dispatch correspondent:

"Until the very moment when his hands were tied and he was thrown to the ground, my husband believed that all the negro intended to do was to rob us. When he stopped us on the street my husband saw that I was about to scream and said to me:

"Don't scream, Katie. It's best to go away. But we have, and then he will go away."

"The negro then had his knife and pistol drawn and while he handcuffed me on the lower part of his face, beneath the eyes, he turned to my husband and said:

"Oh, you've been to party, have you?" he asked me. "Where was the party and what did you do there?"

"I answered him as well as I could and he listened and looked at me then he turned to my husband, who had on a Prince Albert coat and said:

"You do look rather dandy, don't you?" he said to my husband. "You're dressed up very nice for the party."

"Then he turned to me and asked:

"Who is it in your hand?"

"He is my husband, said I.

"You're a liar," came the negro's reply.

"Yes, I am," I answered. "I am telling you the truth. This is my husband."

"Well, you'll both have to come along with me," the negro suddenly said. "I'm going to search each of you, but I'll take you to a safe place first."

"It was at this moment that the Hartshorn boy came by. He passed right behind us, and the negro and he heard me say to the negro:

"We can't give you anything more. We have been searched already."

"But the negro hurried his pistol at young Hartshorn, and he said to me:

"He did not give the alarm till he had seen seven blocks away. If he had shouted, or if he had run, he would have been killed before he could get away. I will never forgive you for this."

"Then the man suddenly grabbed Charles by the collar with his right hand in which he held his pistol, and he said to me:

"I am going to search you, but I'll take you to a safe place first. He then turned to my husband and said:

"Don't scream, Katie. It's best to go away. But we have, and then he will go have even a pocket-knife. I have even carried a pistol for a year. I will have persuaded me to carry a gun, and I traveled, and I have traveled in some pretty rough sections of the country, having been out in Leadville, Colo., in 1893, for a jewelry house, carrying about $2,000 worth of Jewelry valuables with me in a valise. I was frightened when the negro held us up, and I knew the best thing to do, as I was without a weapon, was to go along with him. I gave the man $5, which I had in my pocket, and he said: 'You're a good fellow, and I'll let you go. But I'll be back again just that just that if I hadn't been going away the next morning. Then, before he pushed us ahead of him away from that spot, he repeatedly thrust the muzzle of his revolver against my face, once or twice by the collar, afterwards, he pushed me placatingly inside my ear. When he had me by the collar, he pushed me along, by the barrel of the pistol. I knew that if I resisted he would shoot me. I was afraid that he was a bold and desperate man.

He was about 5 feet 10 inches tall, with very broad shoulders and built like an athlete. And when we reached the lonely spot in the outskirts of the town where we halted us, as I thought to search us, he had my hand tied before I knew it and threw me quickly to the ground, where he tied my feet with his hands. I was afraid to move, for he threw me with my face downward to the ground and again placed his pistol to my head, threatening and cursing me as he did so."

"When he released me after the outrage had been committed he cut the cord with his knife and kept his revolver leveled at me as I rose. I had no chance whatever to attack him, as the slightest move towards him would have meant instant death. He held his revolver aimed at me until we went to the depot, where he was waiting for us.
He was not to my left. These are the facts of the case, and I have no doubt about them. I had no chance to do anything.
The negro had me in his power from the very start."

Mr. Taylor is a medium-sized young man weighing probably 140 pounds. He does not look at all muscular. He is of fair complexion, brown hair, light mustache and blue eyes.
He discusses the awful affair very calmly. He is a native of Kansas and has been told so that there is no need of his reputation here. But with the prospect of the early capture of the man who has been murdering his wife, he is not a partner with the Post-Dispatch correspondent.

How the Fashionable Find Means of Entertainment During the Penitential Season—Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Stephens' Reception—Departures, and Returns.

Somewhat it has come to be that Lent is not so rigorously observed, as in days gone by, even by those whose religious faith makes the penitential season one of sacredness.

Many ingenious ways of evading Lenten stagnation in social matters have been discovered, which added to the festivities indulged in by those who have no religious scruples on the subject now have lent anything else but a dull and stupid season.

Card clubs are organized for these days by those who have been too much engaged with their occupations to be able to indulge in the pleasures of the season.

Thousands of people are flocking to the city for the purpose of attending the Cuban revolution.

CZAR ZIEGENHEIN.

THE FIRST OF A SERIES OF LIVES BY PLUTARCH PLUNKIN.

In these days of mental activity when supremacy is no longer won, either by nations or individuals, by physical force; when every man, while standing upon his own feet, is also standing upon the feet of others on his own top; when the command, "Love thy neighbor as thyself," has given way to the command, "Love thyself as thy neighbor;" when the studies of how to defeat the law and how to successfully compete with the bargainer without incurring a penalty, are common to the student of the science of politics is one of the sciences, it seems to me that there could be nothing more valuable and instructive to the rising generation than a study of the life of Mr. Gladstone. He was a really great man, and a psychological analysis of his life would be of great value to the aspiring youth to comprehend the why and wherefore of their greatness.

It is a fact that when Mr. Gladstone was asked recently how he had acquired that clear insight into the character of men, he answered that he had acquired his traits and tone to which he owes in a great measure his success as a statesman, that he had acquired them by a study of the lives and study of men of his own times and of the characters of those who have figured in the world's history.

The utility of the study of psychology being evident, it is certainly a great source of wisdom and pleasure to the collector of facts worth while to depict in an instructive way the characters of some of the greatest men whose names are familiar to all. But I am glad they were restrained by the thought that such a work would be scorned as an imitation of Plutarch. But I cannot help but deplore the youth of to-day of invaluable lessons in psychology? Besides Plutarch's pattern?

I have no fear, however, of being called an imitator, for, while Plutarch's lives are interesting, it seems to me that they were written after the subject was dead. I propose to take my psychological photographs from the living, because there will be a great benefit in this, because the subjects of my sketches will be treated as magnetic men, after perusing their histories and forming the opinion that they are human beings like you and me, and that you would like to have their personal acquaintance, you can call on them and get a shock.

THE AUTHOR.

"CZAR" ZIGZENHEIM, (PLUNK'S LIVES—NO. 1.)

There are two very good reasons why "Czar" Zigzenheim should be the opening volume of a series of biographies. First, he is the most commanding of all our great men; secondly, he is the most illustrious character. I am enabled to devote more space to him than to any other man to the world, a new discovery in the science of psychology has made it sometimes possible to trace a man's lineage back to his ancestors, and so far as this last statement may be to scientific men,
